Everything is changing. Anxiety is the very air we breathe these days. How might we, as followers of Christ, come alive in our faith, instead of deadening in fear and frustration over the future? Join Rev. Leah Robberts-Mosser for this paradigm-shifting retreat.

This retreat will help reset your soul sensors. Recalibrate your inner self so that whether the way ahead is clear or clouded, you'll be headed in the Way of Christ. With her unique blend of storytelling, penchant for making art history come to life, and ability to craft hands-on, interactive "Prayers in Motion," which get worshipers out of their heads so their hands get dirty, Rev. Leah Robberts-Mosser will lead us. You will leave with handmade mementoes, made together over the course of the event, to incorporate into daily prayer.

As every day people trying to make our way in this often overwhelming world, retreat- goers will find rest, rejuvenation, and restoration. Together, we will find a quiet place to hear call of the One who rose again so that we may have life and have it abundantly to “Come Alive!”

Rev. Leah Robberts–Mosser serves as lead Pastor of Community UCC, a Progressive, Justice with Peace, Open and Affirming Congregation of the United Church of Christ, nestled in the heart of the University of Illinois. She and her husband, the Rev. David Robberts–Mosser, make their life with their young daughters, Chloe and Violet.

She comes from family of artists and church folk (Trinity, UCC – Jasper!) She spent most of her young years helping her mother, a UCC Commissioned Minister for the Liturgical Arts, finish details on the latest art installation for church.

With a degree in art from Hanover College and an MDiv from Chicago Theological Seminary, she has written, “The Pastor as Creative: 4 Principles for Centering Pastoral Life in Creativity,” in Sacred Habits: The Rise of the Creative Clergy, edited by Rev. Chad R. Abbott. This October, her sermon, “For All the Bathshebas” will be included in Sojourner’s “100 Sermons Against Domestic and Sexual Violence.”
